Special Appreciation

Each successive ISPP meeting is a tribute to the energy, talent, and devotion of individuals and organizations who have contributed in one way or another to the hundreds of arrangements which must work together to produce a successful meeting.

This meeting is an exceptionally fine example of international cooperation. On a number of occasions during the past four years the Conference Chair, Professor Daniel Bar-Tal has been the focal point of enormous and sometimes conflicting pressures. His skill, dedication, and above all perseverance in every aspect of the meeting arrangements has been exemplary.

The program co-chairs, Professors Janice Gross Stein and Richard Ned Lebow took on the formidable challenge of organizing the intellectual program for this meeting. With this program they present a veritable feast of opportunities to their colleagues the equal of which we are not likely to see again. They enjoyed the able support of a committee of more than twenty persons, who each took personal responsibility for a portion of the program.

The Conference Chair and the Society also extend their special public gratitude to a number of offices and agencies which assisted immeasurably in the arrangements:

The Israel Academy of Sciences and Humanities
The Office of the President of Tel Aviv University
Faculty of the Social Sciences of Tel Aviv University
Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the State of Israel
Ministry of Science and Development of the State of Israel
Ministry of Tourism of the State of Israel
The Tel Aviv Municipality

These agencies and individuals have made this meeting possible. They have the special appreciation of ISPP.

The Theme of this meeting will be "Political Psychology: The State of the Art." This is to encourage the submission of suggestions for panels, papers and program events which review the theory and research in particular areas of political psychology and suggest directions for future efforts. While a number of sessions and panels will focus on this theme, the program will also include panels featuring the broad array of research in political psychology.

Proposals for papers should include a formal title and an abstract of between 150-200 words. Proposals for panels should include a proposed title and description of the focus of the session, the names of three or four participants and the titles of their presentations. The DEADLINE FOR FINAL APPROVAL of papers and panels is JANUARY 15, 1990.

In keeping with the aims of the Society, proposed panels and events which have a significant interdisciplinary, international, or interprofessional character will be the most likely to receive approval.

ISPP'S OWN
BOOKS BY MEMBERS AND PARTICIPANTS
ON DISPLAY IN THE BOOK EXHIBIT/HOSPITALITY AREA

This year marks the third annual "ISPP's Own" publications exhibit. Society members and participants on the meeting program may participate in this popular event by sending a copy of their recently published work to the exhibit organizer. Unless other prior arrangements are made, the material on display becomes the property of ISPP.

Members unable to attend the Annual Meeting will receive a copy of the Official Meeting Program as a token of the appreciation of their colleagues for their contribution to the publications exhibit.

Instructions for the 1990 "ISPP's Own" exhibit will be inclosed in pre-registration information distributed in early 1990.
