

The third annual American Political Science Association (APSA) political psychology pre-conference will be held at the University of California, Berkeley on Wednesday, August 30th. The event is sponsored by the APSA Political Psychology section.

The presenters will include:

- Matt Barreto (University of California, Los Angeles), "The Great White Hope: Donald Trump, Race, and the Crisis of American Politics"
- Daphna Canetti (University of Haifa), TBA
- Aleks Ksiazkiewicz (University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign), "Conservative Early Birds and Liberal Night Owls: Examining How Chronotype Relates to Political Attitudes and Behaviors"
- Dale Miller (Stanford University), "Navigating social life with a moral self-image"
- Laura Stoker (University of California, Berkeley), "Generalizing from Survey Experiments"

The conference will feature 2 poster sessions with discussants and provide an opportunity to talk with other political psychologists.

Breakfast and lunch will be served, and a reception will follow.

You do not have to be a member of the APSA to attend, so please forward this information to any colleagues you think may be interested.

You can register for the conference event at the following site:

<https://www.eventbrite.com/e/2017-political-psychology-apsa-pre-conference-registration-35095800484>

Joanne Miller, Leonie Huddy, and Cara Wong (conference organizers)