

For many people, especially the young, Christmas is a wonderful time. However, millions of people in conflict-hit countries such as Syria, Gaza, Iraq, South Sudan and Ukraine, are in increasingly volatile situations, in need of protection and assistance. Children don't start wars, but their homes, schools, families and communities are torn apart by war. These are the very things they rely on for protection and the opportunity to build a life without poverty.

This December, Cambridge Scholars Publishing will be supporting the international charity, War Child, by donating 100% of the proceeds of our Charles Dickens 'Christmas' titles. We are also offering our readers a 60% discount. To read more, please click here.

Also this month, Cambridge Scholars Publishing is very pleased to announce our new 'Awards' campaign. We are proud that many of our authors have received awards from distinguished academic/industry bodies for the excellent work they have authored. In 2015, we will be showcasing the best of these awards to highlight the diversity of the academic research we publish, and give our authors an opportunity to shine. To read about this month's award-winner Giacomo Meyerbeer: A Discography of Vintage Recordings 1889 – 1955, and to receive a 50% discount, please click here.

Our December discount campaigns, with a time-limited discount of up to 60%, include:
