

European Consortium for Political Research (ECPR) is holding its 12th Summer School in Methods and Techniques, July 28 to August 11, 2017 at Central European University (CEU) in the beautiful downtown Budapest, Hungary. This year the course offer includes 59 quantitative, case based and interpretive methods classes along with new courses specifically catering to the interests of political psychologists and psychologists in general. Early course registration discount ends on April 21 so register soon.

Select courses that may be of interest to you:

Applied Experimental Research by John T. Jost (see also Introduction to Experimental Research in the Social Sciences by Federico Vegetti)

Psychometrics and Item Response Theory by Stanley Feldman

Advanced Structural Equation Modelling by Levente Littvay (see also Introduction to Structural Equation Modeling by Jochen Mayerl)

Multilevel Structural Equation Modelling by Bruno Castanho e Silva (see also Applied Multilevel Regression Modelling by Zoltan Fazekas)

Introduction to Mplus by Levente Littvay

See more information along with the rest of the course offer at <https://ecpr.eu/Events/EventDetails.aspx?EventID=116>