ISPP
Annual Conference 2010
Program Materials
WELCOME LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

This year’s conference theme is “Making our World Anew: Political Psychology in an Age of Global Challenges.” The challenges are, indeed, enormous: Long-standing enmities fester in many places; terrorists threaten civilians everywhere; the list of on-going human rights violations around the world remains tragically long; women and young girls still suffer disproportionately from poverty, lack of education and health care, and from many forms of abuse. Further, according to new UN estimates, the number of malnourished people around the globe topped one billion for the first time in 2009, and malnutrition contributes to more than half of all childhood deaths. More than two billion people lack adequate clean water for drinking, sanitation, or both. The Copenhagen conference to address global warming was a dismal failure. What better time to see how our research and energy may be used to address these challenges.

Steve Reicher and the section chairs have assembled a splendid program, and I encourage you to take full advantages of its riches. Many panels and roundtables, such as “Globalization, Environment and Identity,” “Political Psychology, Political Science and Human Rights,” and “Can Psychology Help Us Save the World…” directly embrace the conference theme. It is always delightful to hear excellent research by our younger scholars, assuring us that ISPP’s future is in good hands. We look forward to keynote addresses by Stanford Award recipient Peter Loewenberg, and Lasswell Award recipients Steve Brown and Tom Pettigrew.

This year, ISPP celebrates a third of a century, and we have certainly changed during that time. At our founding in 1978, most of our 233 founding members were seasoned scholars, many with stellar work. Even though Jeanne Knutson was a pivotal founding member, ISPP’s membership was just 7% female then; today it is 37%. Our founders were 73% North American. Now, only half of us are North American with the other half of our members representing more than 50 countries. The establishment of the Junior Scholars in 1998 has helped make us younger and more gender balanced. Today, 45% of our members hold junior scholar status (ten or fewer years post Ph. D.). Fifty percent of our junior scholars are women, while women comprise only 30% of the rest of our membership.

ISPP’s 33rd annual meeting is our third in San Francisco, the other two being in 1987 and 1992. Linda Patten and Joan Streegan of Wayneflete, Inc. have planned and carefully attended to all our San Francisco arrangements, and we are grateful. San Francisco offers much to see and do. So enjoy a visit to Fisherman’s Wharf, a walk on Golden Gate Bridge, a ride on a cable car, a stroll through Chinatown, or a visit to another of San Francisco’s many attractions.

Finally, we welcome Carolyn Funk as our new Executive Director, and Farrah Graham, her associate, as our Assistant Director. With Carolyn as our Director, our central office has now moved to Virginia Commonwealth University, her home institution.

My welcome and warm regards to all. I know that you will find many challenging and enriching sessions. I hope you also will enjoy getting together with old friends and making new ones.

—Sam McFarland, ISPP President
Welcome to the 33rd annual meeting of the ISPP in San Francisco, California! Once you’ve seen all that [the Hotel] California has to offer, you’ll agree with the Eagles singing “you can check out any time you like, but you can never leave!” The Junior Scholars Committee (JSC) is pleased to welcome you to another great conference. As usual, we have several events planned especially for the junior scholar membership (those of us who are still students or within eight years post-degree).

Start off the meeting by mingling with your colleagues and friends at the Junior Scholar Social Hour, Wednesday 7 July 2010, 5:30-6:30 in the Mark Hopkins Grand Cafe. This is a great opportunity to come and see old and new friends as we kick off four days of stimulating conversation and research about political psychology. If you are a junior scholar (and only junior scholars please!), come have a drink on us prior to attending the opening reception.

The next day we will hold our annual Mentoring Tea, Conversations with the Wise, Friday 9 July 2010, 5:30-6:30. If you signed-up to be matched to a senior scholar with similar research interests, this is your chance to speak one-on-one with more experienced ISPP membership. If you weren’t able to sign up in advance, or if you weren’t able to make it to the conference, please join our mentoring database. Being in the database will put you in touch with a mentor that you can reach out to even after the meeting is over.

Finally, we have two informative roundtables planned. The Junior Scholars Career Development Roundtable, Braving the Job Application Process, is scheduled for Friday 9 July, 3:30-5:00. Everything you’ve ever wanted to know about job applications—from tenure track to research faculty to private organizations—it’ll be here. And, to help you get started down the right track to your dream job, be sure and attend the Junior Scholars Publishing Roundtable, Helping Junior Scholars Tackle the Publish or Perish Mantra. This roundtable—all about publishing—will take place on Saturday 10 July, 9:00-10:30.

We are pleased to congratulate all thirteen recipients of the Junior Scholar Travel Award! We had so many great applications, and unfortunately, we aren’t able to fund everyone. But all of the 49 Travel Award Applications we received, we see evidence of the exciting research that Junior Scholars contribute to these annual meetings. Case in point: the winners of the Best Dissertation and Roberta Sigel 2009 awards! After the 2010 conference, please consider submitting your paper (or dissertation to be completed in 2010) in consideration for one of these awards. You can find details about these opportunities and more at the Junior Scholars Blog (http://polpsych.wordpress.com/).

The JSC runs on the time and energy of its junior scholar volunteers. We are grateful for their hard work this past year. Moreover, we hope that you—the junior scholar membership—are able to take advantage of the opportunities for networking, growing, and learning that ISPP affords. The JSC is here to help bring junior scholar needs to the forefront, so if there is something that you would like to see happen, please let us know. Your feedback is very important to us! In the meantime, here’s to a fun and fruitful meeting!

The Sigel Award is given to junior scholar authors of the best papers presented at annual scientific meetings. Nominees must be current ISPP members.

ISPP first announced this award at its Vancouver meeting in 1996. Professor Sigel, whom the award honors, has been a distinguished professor of political science at Rutgers University since 1973. She is author and editor of seven books and many articles and book chapters, mostly in the areas of political socialization and democratic citizenship. She has had many leadership roles in the American Political Science Association and has served as program chair, Vice-President and President of ISPP.

All ISPP junior scholars who are current dues paid members of ISPP and had their paper accepted for the 2010 summer meeting/conference are eligible to be considered for the award to be presented during the 2011 meeting. Junior scholars are students (graduate or undergraduate) and faculty who received their degree within the last eight years. Each (of the two) award carries a cash prize of $250.

There are two prizes with slightly different criteria to accommodate the authorship and publication practices in the various disciplines represented in ISPP:

- The first award is given to the best paper written by junior scholars only. In the case of multiple authors, all co-authors must be junior scholars.
- The second award is conferred to the best paper with a junior scholar first author. This award allows for a senior scholar co-author.

Please nominate (self-nominations are encouraged) eligible papers only (posters are not eligible) and submit them to the email address below by August 16, 2010. Papers previously submitted to the Sigel Award are not eligible. All submissions will be read by the award committee, consisting of members of the Junior Scholar Committee as well as senior scholars. Two papers will be selected strictly according to scientific excellence and their contribution to research in political psychology.

ISPP 2009 Dissertation Award Announcement

Deadline: January 15, 2011

All Ph.D. dissertations within the field of political psychology are eligible for consideration, regardless of home discipline. Dissertations should represent an independent piece of research that is the sole work of the author and gains the highest degree at the author’s university.

Nominations are due by January 15, 2011, for dissertations completed and successfully defended between January 1, 2010 and December 31, 2010. Nominees must be current ISPP members.

Nominations should be submitted electronically and must include a one-page abstract (no more than 300 words), a 10-page (3,000 word) summary of the dissertation, and a letter of recommendation from the thesis advisor or committee member, all in English. Nominations should be submitted to the award committee co-chairs: Alex Haslam (a.haslam@exeter.ac.uk) and Monica Schneider (schneimc@muohio.edu).

The award committee will request a copy of the full dissertation for those selected to participate in the second round evaluation. If the dissertation is written in a language other than English, the full dissertation may be submitted in the original language for the second round evaluation, and at least one qualified reader fluent in that language will be included as a committee member for the second round evaluation.

Please forward this announcement to Directors of Graduate Studies at your institution, and to any other persons to whom you think it might be of interest.

Many thanks,

Alex Haslam and Monica Schneider

Annual Scientific Meeting of the International Society of Political Psychology (ISPP)
July 9th – 12th, 2011

“Cooperation and Human Societies: Towards a Multidisciplinary Political Psychology”

Conference Program Chairs: Elizabeth Theiss-Morse (University of Nebraska-Lincoln) and Kevin Durrheim (University of Kwazulu-Natal)
ISPP 2010-11 President: Leonie Huddy, Stony Brook University

This year’s conference theme reflects growing interdisciplinary evidence of cooperation as a critical foundation for the development of human societies. Frequently, political psychology has focused on the negative aspects of human nature, examining the political implications of intergroup conflict, violence, nationalism, prejudice, and discrimination. Yet across numerous social science subfields including evolutionary psychology, developmental psychology, political economy, political theory, and social psychology there is growing awareness of the pervasiveness of human cooperation and its centrality to group life. Conflict and cooperation are opposing but omnipresent and often co-existing features of human societies.

Istanbul provides an excellent setting in which to examine this theme, straddling Asia and Europe, blending the secular and religious, and serving as a reminder of much consequential world history (both cooperative and conflictual). In a globalized world, human cooperation has the potential to minimize religious, geographic and cultural differences. What better place to examine these issues than in cosmopolitan Istanbul?

To address this year’s theme, the program committee hopes to create a setting in which diverse scholars can come together to discuss the ways in which positive aspects of human nature influence political phenomenon. We are particularly interested in bringing together different perspectives and new findings from the fields of anthropology, biology, economics, philosophy, political science, and psychology to create an exciting intellectual forum in which scholars can exchange views and work towards the development of a political psychology that focuses on both positive and negative facets of human behavior.

Format

Paper and Panel proposals: Each panel normally includes up to four papers addressing a common substantive topic, a chair, and up to two discussants. We accept individual paper submissions, which subsequently will be grouped into panels with similar papers, and will be assigned a chair and (possibly) discussants. We also accept proposals for complete panels that include all papers and identify the chair and discussant (if you choose to utilize discussants), which can be submitted by the panel chair as a complete session.

Posters: Poster sessions are designed to present research projects in all their phases. Posters can include information on data, results, conclusions, applications, or implementation of instruments and techniques. The aim of poster sessions is to be interactive and to provide exchange and discussion of ideas between the poster’s author and the people viewing the posters. We accept individual poster proposals, which should be submitted to the appropriate section chairs.

Discussants and Chairs: Because every panel will have a chair and many will have discussants who will help to stimulate discussion and valuable feedback, all presenters at the conference will most likely be assigned the role of discussant or chair at a panel on which they are not presenting a paper. If you would like to serve in this role for a specific area of study that fits your interests and expertise, you can submit a request through the online submission system.

Roundtables: Roundtables involve two or more presenters who articulate their views on a particular topic. This can be a research area, a particular book, a method, or some other topic. We accept only proposals for whole roundtables, including the participants and a chair, which can be submitted by the roundtable chair. We do not accept individual proposals to join a roundtable.

Workshops: Workshops serve to instruct or give the audience practice in methods for political psychological research or might focus on practical program training relevant to political psychology. Workshops not charging additional fees will be given the same time slots as the other formats. Those who wish to require a fee for materials and/or need a longer time slot to conduct a workshop should contact the program chairs. We accept proposals for workshops, which can be submitted by the workshop chair. We do not accept individual proposals to join a workshop.

There will also be 60-minute keynote addresses as well as 60-minute keynote discussions where two or more people will debate an issue of importance. These will be solicited for the program by invitation only.

Sections

Individual papers and posters, as well as entire panels, roundtables, and workshops can be submitted to a maximum of two of the 11 sections listed below, with one designated as the presenter’s first choice and the other designated as second. Each section is marked with keywords associated with its most relevant topics, to assist participants in identifying the sections that best match their research interests. A list of section chairs is posted on our conference website: http://ispp.org/meet.html.

The International Society of Political Psychology and the Chairs for the 2011 conference emphasize methodological and theoretical plurality in all participations and welcome all approaches and all topics.

Proposal Submission

Submission of proposals opens in October 2010. To submit your proposal, visit the ISPP Annual Meeting website at: http://ispp.org/meet.html where you will be able to submit your proposal electronically. In order to contain the size of the conference and limit the number of parallel sessions, participants will be limited to no more than two presentations of a given type (paper, poster, roundtable, workshop). The deadline for submissions of proposals is February 4, 2011.

Please note that all presenters, panel chairs, and discussants will need to register and pay for conference attendance. Also, if your paper submission is accepted, you will be expected to electronically upload a copy of your research paper online for panel chairs, discussants, and public archives. You are also expected to distribute it by email to all members of your panel (other presenters, chair, and discussant). Finally, if your submission is accepted, you may be assigned a presentation time on any of the days of the conference.

We look forward to your participation. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact us at ispp.conference@yahoo.com

Best Wishes,

Beth and Kevin
