VIRTUAL CONFERENCE INFORMATION

Virtual Conference Information

Registration

Due to the need for customized logins for our virtual event, pre-registration was required. All registrants should have received their login details via e-mail no later than three business days prior to the event. Pre-registration was available through late June.

FAQ & Support

A test link was made available to all registrants 1-10 July 2020, with an opportunity to contact the production company for support if needed. During the virtual conference, there is a FAQ page available at <http://www.mb4productions.com/webcast1/support.html>. The support e-mail address is HERE.

Navigation/On-demand Recordings

When you first log in, you will find yourself on a page with the Agenda for the ENTIRE EVENT – all three dates. Think of this as the Lobby. There is a tab for each date, and a listing of virtual meeting rooms across the top of the agenda. Click on a room number to enter the virtual meeting room. Sessions will be running concurrently. When you enter a virtual meeting room, you will be viewing whatever is broadcasting in that room live, at that moment. You can click on “Home” in the upper right of the screen to return to the Lobby. We recommend that you keep your browser window fully expanded; making it smaller might cause some elements on the page to become displaced and overlap. Chrome is the recommended browser to use, but any web browser will work. All sessions are being recorded, and if you miss any sessions, they will be available on-demand the following day, until 30 August 2020. You will need your conference login credentials to access the on-demand material.

Questions?

The ISPP staff is available for questions on any day M-F, 9:00 AM – 5:30 PM EDT. Please e-mail us with any inquiries.

Polarization, Misinformation, and Entrenched Group Conflict: Harnessing Political Psychology to Find Solutions to Problems New and Old

Welcome to the 43rd Annual Scientific Meeting of the International Society of Political Psychology... and our first-ever all-virtual event! As you know, the global pandemic with COVID-19 forced ISPP's leadership to make the tough decision to cancel our in-person meeting in Berlin. While a number of organizations have had to forego their meetings this year altogether, ISPP decided to try to move online and capture some of the fantastic intellectual exchange and community building that happens in person every year. We've contracted with a company that produces virtual events to ensure this is a professional conference, and that it is as positive an experience as possible for everyone under the circumstances.

A small army of people worked behind the scenes beginning in March, with a steep learning curve on all-virtual events, to deconstruct and reconstruct every element of planning from in-person to online. We have recreated as much of an in-person experience as possible, maintaining our plenary sessions, panels, roundtables, Mentoring Lunch, Summer Academy, Elevator Pitch Workshop, and Awards Ceremony. Posters have been converted to panel and blitz sessions. And since we are spanning multiple time zones to keep the international aspect of our conference, you may even get to experience something resembling jet-lag.

Our theme this year is Polarization, Misinformation, and Entrenched Group Conflict: Harnessing Political Psychology to Find Solutions to Problems New and Old. At the time I wrote this theme, I had a different perspective on the possible interpretations and resulting presentations it might attract. Now that the world has been turned upside-down, we are seeing new forms of polarization and misinformation, and even new group conflicts. Still, this moment is also a powerful lens for examining age old divisions, and we are watching the politicization of life and death struggles in our neighborhoods and our nations. We have found some room in the program for presentations specifically relating to the pandemic, but I am sure all our work in political psychology is even more relevant today than it was a few months ago.

I am deeply grateful to the many ISPP members, staff, representatives of the GC and the virtual conference Task Force who worked long hours over many Zoom meetings to make this possible. These included Sev Bennett, Thomas Craemer, Chris Federico, Anna Kende, Lilliana Mason, Shelley McKeown Jones and Heather Schlabach. We all owe a special debt of gratitude to Lilliana Mason and Thomas Craemer, our fearless Program Chairs for this year, who were willing to take on the challenge of putting together the program across multiple time zones and with no physical venue. They really planned two conferences this year, one in person and one virtual. I hope you get a chance to send them thanks. Thanks also go to the Section Chairs, for the many hours they spent serving ISPP and all of us. We also must recognize the many ISPP members who served on various committees throughout the year, including the members of our various Awards Committees which were chaired by Amber Boydston, Daphna Canetti, Chris Federico, Eva Green, Eric Groenendyk, Rick Lau, Masi Noor and Omar Wasow. There are many more folks to thank. ISPP cannot function without extensive volunteer service on all of its committees and on the Governing Council.

Behind the scenes of almost everything in ISPP are our Central Office Staff, Sev Bennett, Executive Director, and Heather Schlabach, Executive Administrator, who take care of the operations of the organization year-round. When unforeseen problems arise, as certainly happened this year, they help solve them quickly and effectively. They both stepped up with tremendous effort, professionalism, and positive energy.

The Keynote Addresses this year are exciting and highly relevant to the work we all do and the moment in which we live. George Marcus will deliver the Lasswell Award Keynote, entitled, "What we can see and what we do not: The different roles of emotion in the rise of the far right." Linda Tropp will deliver the Sanford Award Keynote, entitled, "Ambivalence about Social Relevance: Reframing Academic Research and Reaffirming Our Commitment to the Public Good", and Roberto González will deliver a special keynote on the youth political movement in Chile, entitled, "Collective Action as a Vehicle for Social Change: The Psychological and Political antecedents and consequences of the Social Outbreak in Chile." Please try to attend those keynotes virtually if you can. You will see them in the schedule.

This year continues the Conference within the Conference (CwC), with the theme of inclusion and/or exclusion of marginalized groups - with a special focus on how the internet, social media, and other technology has encouraged both. Look for the special designation in the schedule. The CwC gives those interested a chance to focus intensely on this area of research over the three days of the meeting.

The Early Career Committee has organized a number of panels and events, including the annual Mentoring Lunch, which will be held via separate virtual sessions this year. The ECC is very important in the work of ISPP, forming opportunities for students and early career faculty and researchers in the areas of networking, professional development, and others. All ISPP members are invited to the annual Business Meeting, to be held on Sunday, 14 July. We will provide information on the financial state of ISPP and plans for future conferences that should be of interest. And please plan to join us for the Award Ceremony as we celebrate our 2020 award winners.

ISPP continues to support scholars in countries where the rights to free speech and Academic Freedom have been under attack. Some of our members have been stripped of their jobs, their access to social services, and their right to travel by their government. ISPP provides support for these members, both financial and intellectual. Thanks to all who have contributed to these efforts; donations to our Scholars Under Threat fund are greatly needed and gratefully accepted at <https://ispp.eventsair.com/ispp-members/donmod/Site/Register>. The Scholars Under Threat Committee oversees the efforts to provide assistance to individuals in need.

We do not yet know exactly what the future will hold for all of higher education, and gatherings such as our regular meetings all over the world. We will have to take things as they come and adapt. But as this very unique year of my ISPP Presidency ends, I want to thank every one of you for your support of ISPP, your commitment to your work, and the value you place in your students, colleagues and collaborators doing great work in political psychology. ISPP has been important to us for many years and I am optimistic it will continue to serve as a source of great intellectual energy and productivity into the future. As I hand things over to President-elect, Felicia Pratto, I wish her and all of our officers and members health and safety.

Again, welcome, and let the virtual conference begin!

Nick Valentino
ISPP President

WELCOME LETTER

From 2020 Program Chairs

WELCOME TO THE 43RD ANNUAL MEETING OF THE INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY OF POLITICAL PSYCHOLOGY!

Welcome to ISPP's first fully Virtual Meeting in Cyberspace!

We are excited to welcome you to the ISPP's 43rd International Conference – for the first time in ISPP history, not at a specific location, but in international Cyberspace! The meeting was originally planned for Berlin, Germany, and we had a huge response rivaling that of last year's meeting in Lisbon, Portugal. Then the tiny virus causing Covid-19 began to mushroom into a global pandemic forcing many sister organizations to scuttle their annual meetings and forcing us to come up with a brand new program.

Despite these challenges, we believe that even a remote conference will serve to showcase the important and cutting-edge scholarship being conducted by our members, and encourage future collaboration. Our program brings together speakers from a wide range of countries, disciplines, and career stages. Centered around the theme of "Polarization, Misinformation, and Entrenched Group Conflict: Harnessing Political Psychology to Find Solutions to Problems New and Old," this year's program recognizes society's challenging times, but also encourages us to think about how political psychology can contribute to positive trends in favor of liberal democracy, academic freedom, and even understanding our current global pandemic.

Overall, our Section Chairs processed 922 original conference submissions and placed them carefully into coherent and diverse panels. Acceptances were then sent out just as the Covid-19 crisis emerged. Not all presenters accepted for the in-person meeting registered for the Virtual Meeting but the event is nonetheless quite large. We have 561 registered participants, participating in 116 panels, and 6 plenary session meeting over a busy three 14.5-hour days spanning multiple time zones. In reconstructing the program to account for the new format, we were guided by the goal of keeping sections together in specific virtual rooms, and in consecutive time blocks as far as that was possible. In rearranging panels that were designed by our wonderful section chairs, we tried to keep to their recommendations, but to also limit all new panels to four papers each. We followed a simple rule: if three papers remained on a panel (their authors registered for the online conference), we retained the originally-arranged panel and found an additional paper on a common theme to add to the panel. If two or fewer papers remained on a panel, we attempted to move them to a similar panel. Many papers are now officially listed in sections that the authors did not originally choose. Many panels were folded together, and this resulted in some sections losing many of the originally-scheduled panels. In one unfortunate case, an entire section (Race, Ethnicity, Gender, and Religion) had very low registration rates, and all of the remaining papers were moved to other sections. This will not affect support for that section next year. We asked each presenter for their preference regarding scheduling within the Central European Summer Time zone (CEST) or the Eastern Daylight Time zone (EDT) and tried to accommodate these preferences as much as we could. That said, we could not accommodate all stated preferences and we apologize to those presenters who find themselves in a time slot that is not convenient for them.

In looking at the program, please keep in mind that every session will be occurring live at one time. We provide the time in both CEST and EDT time zones for easier reference, but those who live in other time zones can also join these panels – just adjusting for their own time. We suggest using an online world clock such as <https://www.worldclock.com/>. Sessions will also be recorded and made available to watch on-demand, starting the following day.

Professor Nick Valentino will moderate a special Presidential Symposium on Tuesday, July 14, from 3:00pm to 4:00pm in the Central European Summer Time (CEST) and 09:00am to 10:00am in the Eastern Daylight Time (EDT), followed by Sanford Award winner Professor Linda Tropp who will speak about “Ambivalence about Social Relevance: Reframing Academic Research and Reaffirming Our Commitment to the Public Good,” in her keynote address scheduled from 4:10pm to 5:10pm CEST and 10:10am to 11:10am EDT on the same day. The keynote address on Wednesday, July 15, 2020, will be given by Professor Roberto González, who will speak about “Collective Action as a Vehicle for Social Change: The Psychological and Political antecedents and consequences of the Social Outbreak in Chile”, from 3:00pm to 4:00pm CEST and 09:00am to 10:00am EDT. Finally, Lasswell Award winner Professor George Marcus will deliver his keynote address regarding “What we can see and what we do not: The different roles of emotion in the rise of the far right” on Thursday, July 16, 2020, 3:00pm to 4:00pm CEST and 09:00am to 10:00am EDT.

In addition, the Early Career Committee is hosting a number of events targeted at supporting the academic and social needs of the new generation of political psychologists. This includes an “Open Science ECC Roundtable” session on Tuesday, July 14, 2020, from 5:20pm to 6:40pm CEST and 11:20am to 12:40pm EDT; another, the “Teaching ECC Roundtable” on Wednesday July 15, 2020, from 5:20pm to 6:40pm CEST and 11:20am to 12:40pm EDT; and an “Elevator Pitch Workshop” immediately following on Wednesday July 15, 2020, from 6:50pm to 8:10pm CEST and 12:50pm to 2:10pm EST. Mentoring lunch sessions will be held separately at times arranged by the Mentors with their Mentees over the conference dates. Please check with your assigned Mentor for details on date/time and how to connect to your specific session.

Running alongside the usual ISPP format, we are continuing last year's innovation of a Conference within the Conference (CWC), albeit in a much smaller format. This is because out of the originally scheduled 10 panels for the in-person conference, only 4 panels were left for presentation at the Virtual Meeting. They will be held on Tuesday, July 14, 2020, from 8:20pm to 11:10pm CEST and 2:20pm to 5:10pm EST, and on Wednesday, July 15, 2020, from 09:00am to 11:50am CEST and 03:00pm to 05:50pm EST. These times were selected based on the preferences of the panelists. Should the evening panels on Tuesday be too late for viewers in the CEST-time zone, or the morning panels too early for viewers in the EDT-time zones, recordings of these panels will be made available to all conference participants for viewing later on. This series of sessions will feature research panels related to the inclusion and/or exclusion of marginalized groups - with a special focus on how the internet, social media, and other technology has encouraged both. We note that while many papers under this topic can fit within existing sections, the role of new media is a burgeoning field. Selected papers constitute a focused set of panels that are listed together in the conference program as part of the CWC.

Of course, all of our work on the program could not have happened without the support of a number of colleagues. It was a pleasure to work alongside an excellent team of Section Chairs for Berlin who reviewed and organized 922 original conference submissions. Thank you so much to (in alphabetical order by last name) Eleni Andreouli, Michal Bilewicz, Violet Cheung, Cengiz Erisen, Rauf Garagozov, Nathan Kalmoe, Anna Kende, Joshua Kertzer, Aleksander Ksiazkiewicz, Markus Prior, Michael Quayle, Jason Reifler, Evelyn Simien, and Cara Wong. We are deeply grateful for your service.

We are also indebted to the Central Office team for their support and tireless work, especially under the extraordinary circumstances. Sev Bennett, Executive Director, worked tirelessly behind the scenes to plan, un-plan, and then re-plan this conference. Heather Schlabach, Executive Administrator, dedicated a huge amount of time in supporting us with the day-to-day organization of the program and the transition to the online format.

Special mention also goes to ISPP President Nick Valentino who has been incredibly supportive and actively involved throughout the entire process by providing feedback and leadership in this very difficult time. Nick also created and joined a new Task Force to assist us in converting the conference to an online format. For their logistical and emotional support, we thank Christopher Federico, Shelley McKeown Jones, and Anna Kende, in addition to Nick, Sev, and Heather.

To our presenters, audiences, ISPP and the wider discipline of political psychology: Thanks to all of you—together we have developed what promises to be one of the most memorable ISPP conferences in history – and not just because it will be the first one presented fully online. We hope that the experiences that we gather in this virtual meeting will help us as an association to grow more inclusive of scholars that have difficulties participating in-person at our typical locations in Europe or North America, or that are cut off from participating due to their governments' illiberal policies. Having a professionally hosted online component may be one way to overcome these obstacles, while at the same time reducing ISPP's overall carbon footprint.

We hope that you will join us in sharing your insights and conference revelations via social media, during and after the conference. The Twitter feed for this year's conference is #ISPP2020, and for news and other conversations you can follow ISPP on Facebook or Twitter @PolPsyISPP . Thank you for joining in this adventure with us.

WELCOME LETTER

From Early Career Committee Chair

EARLY CAREER COMMITTEE WELCOME 2020

Dear Colleagues:

On behalf of the Early Career Committee (ECC), I give you a warm welcome to the first virtual meeting of the International Society of Political Psychology. This is our 43rd annual meeting of ISPP, and we look forward to welcoming you to the various virtual events scheduled over the next few days.

Our team has been working hard during the past several weeks on some modifications for the activities we traditionally carry out during our Annual Meeting. Although we have had to adjust the format of these events somewhat, our aim has always been to remain true to the goal of each session. First, our Mentoring Luncheon Coordinators (Karolina Urbanska and Xiaowen Xu) have recruited a dedicated team of mentors from a range of diverse personal and professional backgrounds. Each mentor will be meeting with a small group of early career scholars for our traditional Mentoring Luncheon. This year, the 'luncheon' will be held via Skype, Zoom, etc. – and not necessarily at lunchtime for anyone. But during this session, the early career scholars who had registered for this activity will have the opportunity to discuss their research, career-relevant matters, and a variety of career dynamics in their respective areas with their mentors.

Second, our Professional Development Coordinators (Amanda Friesen and Angel Saavedra Cisneros) have organized two relevant roundtable sessions. One will be focused on practical advice and information for teaching and advising as an early career scholar (15 July, 5:20pm-6:40pm CEST; 11:20am-12:40pm EDT, Room 1). The second roundtable will address a topic of interest in academia and research: the practice of Open Science (14 July, 5:20pm-6:40pm CEST; 11:20am-12:40pm EDT, Room 1). For each session, a team of panellists with experience and expertise will share their knowledge and provide recommendations that may help early careers scholars as they manoeuvre through this stage in their careers. Our traditional "Elevator Pitch" session will also take place this year (15 July, 6:50pm-8:10pm CEST; 12:50pm-2:10pm EDT, Room 1). Attendees will have the opportunity to receive feedback from a panel of two mid-career scholars with tips and advice on how to present a research project in a brief, enjoyable, and memorable way. Please check the program for information on when these various events will happen.

Although we will not have our traditional Early Career Social Hour this year, we hope that you find the other events helpful and informative. We also encourage you to follow ISPP's social media accounts during the meeting. The ECC will continue to keep you apprised of key events, as well as interesting panels and roundtables. In addition, you can also visit our Medium account (@PolPsyISPP) where our Web Resources Coordinators (Jessica Small and Felipe Vilanova) will be publishing articles written by early career scholars in the coming weeks. As always, we appreciate any comments, advice or feedback on how we can improve. Email us at ecc@ispp.org.

I would like to extend my thanks to our chair-elect, Mukadder Okuyan for her continuous support to me this past year. I also thank our newsletter editors Stacey Heath and Bradley Mankoff for providing us with two fantastic issues. Finally, I thank the rest of the 2019-2020 Early Career Committee officers for their hard work and dedication this year. It has been a privilege to serve with you. We bid farewell to Amanda Friesen, Bradley Mankoff, Angel Saavedra Cisneros, Patricio Saavedra Morales, and Karolina Urbanska, as they come to the end of their tenure on the ECC.

ISPP President, Nicholas Valentino, will offer some initial welcome remarks, announcements, and what to expect during the virtual conference for those participating in the morning of the CEST Zone.

Tuesday, July 14, 3:00pm – 4:00pm CEST/9:00am – 10:00am EDT

Presidential Symposium on Race and Emotion in the Current Moment: Can Anger Bind a Diverse Social Movement?

Nicholas Valentino (University of Michigan, USA), Antoine Banks (University of Maryland), Davin Phoenix (University of California-Irvine), LaFleur Stephens (Princeton University), Ismail White (Duke University)

In lieu of the traditional presidential address, ISPP presents a presidential symposium bringing together four young leading scholars of Black politics to discuss how their work can help shed light on the current moment and what the future might hold. We are fortunate to have Antoine Banks (University of Maryland), Davin Phoenix (University of California-Irvine), LaFleur Stephens (Princeton University), and Ismail White (Duke University) join us. These scholars are doing cutting-edge work, producing some of the most important insights about the intergroup dynamics, emotions, and identity processes underlying the current protests against systemic racism in America and worldwide. This symposium is an opportunity for us all to think about the role of racism and racial inequality in society as a whole, and in our institutions of criminal justice in particular.

Tuesday July 14, 4:10pm – 5:10pm CEST/10:10am – 11:10am EDT

Ambivalence about Social Relevance: Reframing Academic Research and Reaffirming Our Commitment to the Public Good

Linda Tropp (University of Massachusetts Amherst, USA)

Historically, the field of psychology has prided itself on its ability to generate scientific research that can contribute to the public good, and it has established a long and rich legacy of using academic research to address pressing social issues. Still, our discipline has yet to apply the full force of its scholarly potential to address social problems and inform social policy (see Pettigrew, 1988). Collectively, then, we might wonder: why has psychology, as a discipline, not had the level of real-world or policy impact that we would ideally like to have? This talk will discuss how some degree of ambivalence may have tempered our focus on social relevance, as well as exploring strategies that may foster a renewed commitment to conducting socially relevant research.

Wednesday July 15, 3:00pm – 4:00pm CEST/9:00am – 10:00am EDT

Collective Action as a Vehicle for Social Change: The Psychological and Political antecedents and consequences of the Social Outbreak in Chile

Roberto González (P. Universidad Católica de Chile, Chile)

Mass protests are changing the world. Millions of people across countries are participating in collective action addressing, political, social and climate change. Protests are becoming an enduring phenomenon, permanently reconfiguring how politics and social life is performed (Castells, 2015; Nwanevu, 2020). In this talk, I address the psychological and political antecedents as well as the main consequences of the social outbreak experienced in Chile since October 2019. Based on the social identity and normative conceptual frameworks (van Zomeren, Leach, & Spears, 2012; Drury & Reicher, 2000; Tankard & Paluck, 2016), I extend our understanding of the psychology of protest and elaborate an explanation about why this social crisis emerged by providing information regarding the Chilean's economic and political context, the dynamic of police managing the protesters and by examining the role of family and friends in the intergenerational transmission of collective action participation.

Thursday July 16, 3:00pm – 4:00pm CEST/9:00am – 10:00am EDT

What we can see and what we do not: The different roles of emotion in the rise of the far right

George Marcus (Williams College, USA)

The recent rise of nationalist parties in Europe and elsewhere has generated a considerable degree of public and scientific interest. Some see this development as a rejection of long proclaimed liberal values, an explanation somewhat surprising in light of the overall success of the enlightenment project and increasing world-wide support of enlightenment values (Pinker, 2018; Inglehart, 2018).

The common wisdom is that the rise of the far right is driven by fear and by fear-mongering politicians. I argue for a contrary view. Support for far right parties, such as the Front National in France, begins with a sense of injustice. That sense of injustice is expressed as anger. It is anger that is the basis for the rise in support of far right parties. Moreover, as a practical matter, resolving fears, which arise in uncertain conditions, is a quite different matter than resolving grievances. Mislabeling the foundations of the appeal of far right parties as fear-driven, will continue to disable effective responses.

But there is a larger story. Emotion has long been a central topic of scholarly and popular interest. Emotions and much of what they do is hidden but not beneath or around the conscious reasoning mind, but hidden before the conscious mind. And, what flows from this new understanding requires considerable revision about what we think emotion does and how that reshapes how we think about democratic citizenship. And, in this account, the different capabilities of reason and of emotion, jointly enable deft management of conditions of threat.

ROBERTA SIGEL AWARD

Announcement 2020

Roberta Sigel Early Career Scholar Paper Award 2020

The Sigel Award is given to early career scholar authors of the best papers presented at annual scientific meetings in a symposium, paper panel, or poster session.

ISPP first announced this award at its Vancouver meeting in 1996. Professor Sigel, whom the award honors, was a distinguished professor of political science at Rutgers University. She was the author and editor of seven books and many articles and book chapters, mostly in the areas of political socialization and democratic citizenship. She had many leadership roles in the American Political Science Association and has served as program chair, Vice-President and President of ISPP.

All ISPP early career scholars who are current dues paid members of ISPP and had their paper accepted for the 2020 Annual Meeting are eligible to be considered for the award to be presented during the 2021 meeting. Early career scholars are students (graduate or undergraduate) and faculty who received their Ph.D. within the last eight years. Each award carries a cash prize of $250.

There are two awards with slightly different criteria to accommodate the authorship and publication practices in the various disciplines represented in ISPP:

- The first award is given to the best paper written by early career scholars only. In the case of multiple authors, all co-authors must be early career scholars.
- The second award is conferred to the best paper with an early career scholar first author. This award allows for a senior scholar co-author.

Please nominate (self-nominations are encouraged) eligible papers only (note all submissions as papers; poster format submissions are not acceptable) and submit them to the email below by January 15, 2021. Papers previously submitted to the Sigel Award are not eligible. All submissions will be read by the award committee, consisting of members of the Early Career Committee as well as senior scholars. Two papers will be selected strictly according to scientific excellence and their contribution to research in political psychology.

Best Dissertation Award Announcement 2020

The International Society of Political Psychology is pleased to announce a call for nominations for the Best Dissertation Award, given for the first time at the 2008 Annual Meeting in Paris.

All Ph.D. dissertations within the field of political psychology are eligible for consideration, regardless of home discipline. Dissertations should represent an independent piece of research that is the sole work of the author and gains the highest degree at the author's university.

Nominations are due by January 15, 2021, for dissertations completed and successfully defended between Jan. 1, 2020, and Dec. 31, 2020. Nominees must be current ISPP members. Nominations should be submitted electronically and must include a one-page abstract (300 word), a 10-page (3,000 word) summary of the dissertation, and a letter of recommendation from the thesis adviser or committee member, all in English.

For more information, see <http://www.ispp.org/awards/best-dissertation>

Send nominations to the 2021 Award Committee Chair:

Prof. Pazit Ben-Nun Bloom
The Hebrew University Of Jerusalem
pazit.bennun@mail.huji.ac.il

The award committee will request a copy of the full dissertation for those selected to participate in the second round evaluation. If the dissertation is written in a language other than English, the full dissertation may be submitted in the original language for the second round evaluation, and at least one qualified reader fluent in that language will be included as a committee member for the second round evaluation.

The 44th Annual Meeting

ISPP 2021: Advancing the Recognition of Marginalized Peoples

Where: Hotel Omni Mont-Royal, Montréal, Québec, Canada

When: July 15-17, 2021

President: Felicia Pratto (University of Connecticut)

Conference Program Co-Chairs: Dr. Carla Houkamau (University of Auckland), Dr. Allison Harell (Université du Québec à Montréal)

Submission Deadline: December 1, 2020

As an international and interdisciplinary scholarly society, ISPP champions diversity in methods, theories, and research problems, welcomes perspectives and contributions from any location and from members with any identities, endorses human rights for all, and advocates for academic freedom for educators and students and freedom of thought for all people. Under the umbrella “inter-discipline” of political psychology, ISPP members research how humans’ many capacities, both collective and individual, influence the ways that people try to govern by both formal and informal means, the challenges and consequences people face in such endeavors, and how those endeavors change individuals and groups. A few examples political psychologists’ research topics include intergovernmental relations, the cultures of politics, justice definitions and procedures, collective decision-making, the nature of leadership, distinctive and multiple identities, eliminating scientific bias, researcher-activist and community relationships, cultural sharing and cultural appropriation, gender in formal and informal politics, how health and social services pertain to group power and intergroup relations, deliberative democracy, multi-layered politics and governance, community self-help, and others. The overarching goal of the Society is to facilitate new research produced by scholars in fields across the social sciences and other disciplines, including psychology, political science, sociology, ethnic studies, anthropology, history, economics, history, media and communication studies, philosophy, and others. You are warmly invited to participate in this exciting agenda at our annual scientific meeting in Montreal, 15-17 July, 2021.

In keeping with our tradition of researching diverse human groups, human problems, and human solutions, the theme of the 2021 Montreal scientific meeting is Advancing the Recognition of Marginalized Peoples.

This topic is important for two main reasons. First, several social sciences, educators, and national governments were instrumental in attacking and subordinating indigenous communities and others who have been marginalized via colonization and nationalization. Awareness of these processes and awareness of the positive alternatives developed by people in marginalized communities can help stop perpetuating – by design or by neglect – the damaging processes of colonization and nationalization. Considering broader experiences and perspectives may help understanding whether research might, for example, transmit Eurocentric or androcentric values and orientations, and potentially eliminate misunderstandings. Second, how marginalized communities grapple with self-governance, self-determination, inter-governmental relations, the ecology and economy, cultural inheritance, health, gender roles, trans-generational continuity and change are at the heart of political psychology. Our Society and discipline can only be made more complete through more recognition of marginalized peoples.

To this end, the 2021 Program Committee seeks to bring visibility, recognition and attention to matters of importance and relevance to Indigenous communities and other marginalized peoples, and the research methods and topics they deem important. As well as creating opportunities for marginalized voices to be heard and better understood, the conference will provide means of creating or strengthening connections among attendees. In addition to keynote talks, paper panels, workshops, and roundtable discussions, the conference will include time to enable opportunities for discussion, introductions, networking and potential collaborations. Newcomers should know that ISPP conferences have a very welcoming vibe, are attended by students and practitioners (as well as researchers), and provide several opportunities for early career scholars as well.

Thus, in addition to a special invitation to researchers who can offer perspectives of marginalized peoples, we encourage paper and panel submissions that will promote dialogue between researchers who employ different methods, epistemologies, applications of interest, regions and disciplines. As one example, we invite panels featuring multiple disciplines and methods as ways of addressing the same, or closely related, topics. Further, because neither disciplines nor methods remain fixed, the Montreal conference will feature several workshops and symposia on new research methods, including qualitative, statistical, and big-data. Other conference features for attendees include a “Meet the Editors” panel (of our journal, Political Psychology), social occasions for early career scholars, mentoring sessions, our Scholars Under Threat symposium, and the ISPP Summer Academy, held before the conference.

MONTREAL July 15 – 17, 2021

Call for Proposals & Papers

Proposals for individual papers, symposia including several papers, roundtable discussions, and blitz presentations and posters on any topic in political psychology are welcome. The submission deadline is December 1, 2020, and presenters will be notified of their submissions' acceptance in early February, 2021.

Montreal is an accessible, multi-cultural, friendly city with an astounding variety of affordable cuisines, art museums, music venues, world-class universities. Montreal also neighbors some of the prettiest landscapes and waterways in North America. Our conference just follows the world-famous Montreal Jazz Festival. Please plan to come share, learn, and participate in the 2021 Montreal conference!

Join the ISPP Mentoring Program!

The ISPP Mentoring Program pairs junior faculty members with more senior colleagues who can provide advice and support during the early years of the mentee's career.

SENIOR SCHOLARS—BECOME A MENTOR

You may ask to mentor a junior scholar for a brief period to provide mentorship on a specific issue or for a longer time –during the course of a semester or throughout the academic year.

If you're interested in participating, please send an email to

ISPPMentoringProg@ispp.org.

JUNIOR FACULTY MEMBERS —FIND A MENTOR

Ideally, mentees would be paired in at the beginning of their first year as faculty members, but the program will also match assistant professors who have been at their institutions for longer periods.

If you're interested in participating, please send an email to ISPPMentoringProg@ispp.org.

HELP SUPPORT SCHOLARS UNDER THREAT

Academic freedom is under attack in several countries. ISPP has been reaching out in support of our colleagues by offering political advocacy and financial help to scholars under threat. With your generous contributions in 2019 we offered emergency funds to 17 scholars in Turkey. Starting this year, we extend our programs to include scholars under threat from any country, including displaced scholars; therefore your donations are still needed and gratefully accepted.

Go to <https://ispp.eventsair.com/ispp-members/donmod/Site/Register> to donate, or use the “Scholars Under Threat” button in the conference app.

Applications for funds are kept confidential and reviewed by ISPP’s Scholars Under Threat Committee.

For more information about ISPP’s activities including our New Twinning Program in support of scholars under threat, see https://www.ispp.org/about/scholars_under_threat.
