Dear colleagues,

we (Benjamin Schürmann, Heiko Giebler, Magdalena Hirsch, Niklas Stoll, Susanne Veit) are organizing a small-group meeting for interdisciplinary exchange on “Populist attitudes: Sources, Formation, Activation and Correlates” that will take place on June 11th & 12th, 2020 at the WZB Berlin Social Science Center.

We invite proposals from the fields of social psychology, sociology, political science, communication science or other related scientific disciplines at all career levels dealing with empirical research on populist attitudes.

You can find the full call on our website. You are also very welcome to forward our mail to interested colleagues as well.

We ask you to send your proposal (incl. title, 300 word abstract, affiliation and disciplinary background of all authors) to populism.conference@wzb.eu not later than January 31th, 2020. Travel costs and accommodation will be covered for one author of each accepted proposal.
